3. Implementation status of measures to protect minority shareholders when conducting transactions with controlling shareholders

When the Company conducts transactions with a company officer or a major shareholder (i.e., related party transactions), to ensure those transactions do not harm the common interests of the Company and its shareholders, the “Board of Directors Regulations” require that such related party transactions be presented to the Board of Directors. Actual individual transactions are approved by the Board of Directors and supervised through receiving a report. When the Board of Directors pass a resolution concerning related party transactions, a legal check is carried out by the department in charge of legal affairs. As part of such policies, appropriate measures are taken to protect minority shareholders when conducting transactions with controlling shareholders.
